The Mystery on the Friendship Express

Welcome aboard the inaugural voyage of the Friendship Express: Coastal Line! The Equestrian Railway has finally extended its tracks all the way to the sandy shores of Mount Aris. To celebrate, this train features glass-bottomed viewing cars, saltwater dining carts, and enough specialized magic to carry passengers from the depths of Seaquestria straight into the heart of Equestria.

This journey, however, is about much more than convention attendees and merchants rubbing wings. We are hosting a crucial diplomatic mission. Ambassador Tidepool, Queen Novo's top emissary, is traveling in the first-class aquatic cabin en route to Canterlot to sign a landmark unity treaty. Surrounded by the finest security Seaquestria has to offer, his safety was an absolute guarantee.

Well, until it wasn't. It turns out a "guarantee" doesn't mean much to someone wielding a sharpened quill.

Barely after the whistle blew and we left Mount Aris behind, the train plunged into the pitch-black caverns of the Smokey Mountain pass. The floorboards shook violently. The parlor car lights flickered, then died completely. In the darkness, a heavy splash echoed down the corridor. When the emergency lights finally buzzed on, a grim scene awaited: the aquatic cabin was breached, the royal guards were helplessly tangled in paralyzing kelp, and Ambassador Tidepool was floating lifelessly in his private saltwater tank.

The Conductor has locked us down. No pony, hippogriff, or creature is disembarking until the culprit is caught. That means the killer is still right here on board, hiding in plain sight among the staff and guests. Throughout the weekend, it is entirely up to you to solve this by...

- Exploring the train (the convention space)
- Interrogate our suspects (the staff and special guests)
- Track down clues hidden within your schedule
- Cross-check those alibis

Someone cut the power. Someone bypassed the Royal Guard. Which one of you is the murderer.
